

PULLIAM DIED
THIS MORNING.

President of the Big Baseball League Committed Suicide by Shooting.

NEARLY BLEW HIS HEAD OFF

Believed That He Was Mentally Deranged on Account of Nervous Troubles—Would Have Been Blind If He Had Recovered.

United Press Telegram.
NEW YORK, July 29.—Harry C. Pulliam, President of the National League of Professional Baseball Clubs, died at 7:40 this morning in the rooms of the New York Athletic Club, from a pistol wound, self-inflicted.

The head of the big league was suffering, it is believed, from a mental derangement at the time he fired the shot. He has been in ill health for many months. He shot himself at 9 o'clock last night. The ball went completely through his head, knocking out one of his eyes and severing the optic nerve. Even had he recovered he would have been blind.

Standing in the center of the room Mr. Pulliam held a revolver to his right temple. He fired only one shot. It went in at the right temple and came out seven inches away on the left hand side of his head. The bullet destroyed the right eye and passed through the upper part of the left. The sound of the pistol shot was not heard in any other part of the clubhouse, but Mr. Pulliam in falling to the floor apparently dislodged the receiver of a telephone which was standing on a table near by. The operator on the ground floor answering the signal got no reply and sent a bellboy to Mr. Pulliam's room to find out what was the matter. The door was unlocked and the boy, failing to get any response to his knocks, opened it and walked in.

Lying on the floor half-clad lay the baseball magnate. The bellboy hurried downstairs and gave the alarm. Dr. Higgins, club physician, was hastily summoned and after making a hurried examination directed the coroner to be notified. Mr. Pulliam, although still conscious and able to speak, appeared to be too confused to answer the physician's questions coherently. The wounds were carefully dressed but the physician had little hopes of saving Mr. Pulliam's life from the first.

Harry C. Pulliam had only recently resumed the reins of the National League after an absence from duty for several months. Pulliam's temporary retirement was induced by the National League directors, who appointed John Heydler, his assistant, as acting president of the league during Pulliam's absence.

A careful search was made of the room in the hope that something would be found which might point to a possible reason for the suicide. Among the papers scattered about, however, there was nothing to indicate that the act had been at all premeditated. Friends of Mr. Pulliam declare it as their belief that the act was the result of a sudden wild emotion and was done without any forethought and without reason.

Tenth Regiment Band to Perform at Shady Grove.

The first concert of the season will be held at Shady Grove Sunday when the Tenth Regiment band will render two programs, one during the afternoon and the other in the evening. A DARING DIVE.

CHICAGO, July 29.—(Special.)—Interest has been revived in diving here and from the top of the Ohio bridge to the waters of the Yough, a distance of 61 feet, E. F. Clotfelter of Garrett street, yesterday made this daring plunge and he was watched by many of the residents of the town as well as hundreds of visitors at the resort. He leaped gracefully from the top of the bridge and kept his balance well until he plunged into the water with a splash, resurfacing a few minutes later several feet from where he struck the water. It has been several years since the feat was attempted.

VISITOR TO CAMP
THIEVES' VICTIM

Jewelry Valued at $1,000 Is Stolen From Somerset Hotel Room.

SOMERSET, Pa., July 29.—It was learned late tonight that Mrs. B. W. Whiteside, member of a party of distinguished visitors to the camp of the Second Brigade, N. G. P., here from Morgantown, W. Va., has been the victim of a hotel robbery, losing jewelry valued at nearly $1,000. Mrs. Whiteside came to Camp Hunt in an automobile with Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Lewis T. Krebs, the former a member of Gov. William E. Glasscock's staff.

Mrs. Whiteside, who is the wife of a prominent business man of Morgantown, has a room at the Hotel Belmont adjoining that of Col. and Mrs. Krebs. When she was about to retire last midnight she discovered that her grip had been slashed and rifled, the stolen valuables including five necklaces, a pair of gold earrings, three gold chains and a diamond and pearl pendant. One of the necklaces was a heirloom which to Mrs. Whiteside was priceless.

It is supposed the robbery was committed while Mrs. Whiteside was in the dining room between 7 and 8 o'clock last evening. Col. Krebs has put the case in the hands of detectives.

COMMISSIONERS ENTER PROTEST

Against State Highway Department Withholding Thousands of Dollars for Roads.

SOMERSET, July 29.—The County Commissioners have sent a fiery protest to Harrisburg in which they request a holdup of about $7,000 of Somerset county's money by the State Highway Department. Copies of the protest have been forwarded to the State Treasurer, Auditor General and State Highway Commissioner Hunter. A few days ago an order on the State Treasury for a tidy sum was issued to Somerset county on last year's immense forest fire bill. This, it is contended, has been held up by the State Highway Department.

The State Highway Department claims Somerset county is back on her share of the following roads: Somerset township, the short stretch just east of town, $74,84; county's share, and Windsor borough's share on two roads, $2,262, and $3,712, respectively. The Commissioners contended that the county is not liable for any of these claims for the reason that the road east of Somerset has not been accepted by the State Highway Department because it is of defective construction. The present board of Commissioners were not asked and did not approve either the petitions for State aid in building the Windsor roads or sign the contracts for their construction. Commissioner Specht, who was also a member of the old board, says that body was not even consulted in regard to the Windsor improvements. Under these circumstances the Commissioners refuse to pay the claims, on the grounds that the State's action is unwarrantable.

The "good roads" Act of 1895 provides that a township or borough may apply for State aid independent of the County Commissioners, but in such case they must pay one-fourth of the total cost and the county, of course, is not liable for any portion. The present difficulty likely arises from a misunderstanding and an early adjustment may result.

PICNICKERS AT SHADY.

Methodists of Scottsdale Hold Outing Today.

Shady Grove is proving a mecca for picnicers today although the weather did not come up to expectations. The big gathering of the day was that of the Scottsdale Methodists. Three special cars took them to the park this morning. There are several hundred in the party.

This afternoon both the Pastor's Aid Society of the Presbyterian church and the Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church of town will go to the park.

REVOLUTION MAY SHAKE ALL SPAIN.

Throne of King Alfonso Is Tottering as Mutinous Spirit Spreads.

HORRORS OF FRANCE REPEATED?

Believed Terrors of That Revolt Against Monarchy May Be Enacted in Madrid—Only Intervention Can Save Kingdom.

United Press Telegram.
MADRID, July 29.—Spain today is on the verge of a revolution which threatens to sweep Alfonso from the throne and engulf the country in an upheaval equal to the French revolution in 1793. All today's developments, both at home and in Morocco, indicate the government is losing its grip and it is now declared that foreign intervention alone can save Alfonso his crown.

There is danger of a revolutionary wave spreading over too far for this to suffice. The dissatisfaction in Madrid has reached a point where it is no longer safe for the King to venture from the palace. Crowds gathered in front of the palace today and shouted, "Down with the King." Alfonso attempted to appease the wrath of the populace by appearing on one of the palace balconies but a storm of hisses and jeers drove him inside.

GIBRALTAR, July 29.—Official news show that the besieged Spanish garrison is in serious straits and has been compelled to retreat into the forts at Alcazar under the guns of the Spanish warships in the harbor.

All the outposts previously held by the Spaniards have been given up to the victorious Moors and the Spaniards are sorely pressed. They rely upon the warships' shells to save them from surrender or complete annihilation. The situation at Barcelona continues desperate.

A message just received from Melilla declares the Spaniards lost 1,000 killed and 2,500 wounded in the fighting around Melilla on Tuesday and were driven from the outposts and compelled to retreat to the fortifications at Melilla for safety. It is said unless reinforcements arrive shortly their condition will be precarious.

This indicates the work of the committee is about concluded.

OUT IN NEBRASKA.

J. E. Bato, remitting for his cousin, writes that it is the intention of going to Nebraska. He was once a prosperous farmer from Franklin township, and the memories of the days he spent in Fayette county are still dear to him. He says in his letter: "Crops are about here and we expect a big yield. It rained an inch Saturday night and is steadily raining since. The climatic conditions are most favorable and Nebraska will probably come forward with a bumper crop of corn with the biggest ears on earth."

HUNT FORBES ROAD.

Professor Lacey and Party Will Search for It.

GREENSBURG, July 29.—John N. Boucher, Westmoreland county's historian, has received a letter from Professor John Kennedy Lacey, professor of history of Harvard College, stating that he will, on August 16, begin the work of definitely determining the location of the old Forbes road from Bedford to Pittsburgh.

He will be accompanied by Professor Lacey of Westmoreland; Rev. G. P. Donahoe of Greensburg, and many students of history, engineers and surveyors. Professor Lacey is now at Harrisburg, where he is having made copies of every warrant, patent and survey between Bedford and Greensburg that touches on the old Forbes road. From these and from maps and charts made by the English and sent to the war office at London he hopes to locate the old road relic.

OLD WOUND IS OPENED BY FALL

Pittsburgher in Attempting To Board Trolley Car Meets With Bad Accident.

UNIONTOWN, July 29.—In attempting to board a Connelville car last night Frank Swartz, of Pittsburgh, who had been injured in an operation for appendicitis, fell to the brick street and received injuries that will probably cause his death.

The old wound was opened and after an examination by Dr. C. H. Luman Swartz was removed to the Uniontown hospital, where his condition is considered serious. Immediately after the accident the man was taken to the police station. He suffered greatly and Dr. Luman was called. He examined Swartz and discovered that he had not entirely recovered from the effects of the former operation. Another operation will probably be performed today.

Word from the hospital at 2:30 o'clock this morning states that Swartz had secured his clothing and left the hospital. While the hospital people believed him in serious shape Swartz declared he could not submit to another operation. He told other patients he was going to the home of friends.

B. J. Shaughness, decorator and advertising manager for the Wright-Metzler Company, also the most vigorous rooster in town for the New York Giants, is laid up for several days as the result of an accident which befell him this morning.

Mr. Shaughness was doing some decorating about the store when the ladder upon which he was working slipped. He fell to the floor and being a man of more than the average weight he tumbled down on his ankle with such force that the member was fractured.

Dr. T. B. Echard was summoned. He dressed the injury and took Mr. Shaughness to his South Side home in an automobile.

WITNESSES TO GO DOWN IN MINES.

Workings of the Naomi Coal Company to Be Inspected Saturday.

CLOSE OF PLAINTIFF'S CASE

Beginning Next Week the Defense Will Be Heard—September 4 Is the Date Set for Arguments in the Umber Audit Proceedings.

UNIONTOWN, July 29.—An unusual feature in the suit of the Naomi Coal Company to restrain Mrs. Elizabeth S. Moore from cancelling its lease was the fact that the witnesses, attorneys and others interested in the case will inspect the interior of the mine. This was decided upon this morning after a tilt between the rival attorneys. The court decided that at the close of the plaintiff's case, which is expected at noon Saturday, the witnesses and others will go through the mine. If necessary they will return for a further inspection on Monday, after which the defense will be heard.

Several witnesses were examined this morning but their testimony was more of a corroborative nature. The witnesses expressed the opinion that the best of mining conditions prevailed and that the company recovered all the coal that could be expected.

This morning, September 4, was agreed upon as the date for arguments in the Umber audit proceedings. Attorney H. M. Stevenson of Pittsburgh was present and with F. P. Rush represented the petitioners. E. C. Higbee and W. C. McKean were here in behalf of Judge Umber. The defendant attorneys objected at first to a date being set as Judge Umber is away on his vacation and could not be reached.

After considerable discussion it was finally decided that the arguments in the case will be heard on September 4.

Deputy Attorney General J. E. Cunningham has served notice on Attorneys Johnson and Rush and District Attorney D. W. Henderson giving notice that C. C. Gault shall resign as Justice of the Peace at Brownsville within the next ten days. If he does not give up his office quo warranto proceedings will be instituted by the Attorney General. This action follows the decision that Squire C. W. Bowman did not forfeit his office by taking a European trip and therefore Gault's office position where no vacancy existed.

Bowman was ousted by the local courts but took his case to the Supreme Court where it was decided that he did not forfeit his office, the local courts being reversed.

MINE FOREMAN IS UNDER ARREST

Charged With Tearing Down Danger Signal and Inspector Is Up in Arms.

WASHINGTON, Pa., July 29.—Charged with tearing down a danger sign in the Marianna mine of the Pittsburgh-Buffalo Company at Marianna in a section where gas existed, an information was made yesterday before a Washington justice against Thomas Gatehouse, a mine foreman. Officers went to Marianna last night and Gatehouse's arrest is expected today on a charge of violating the mining laws. This information was made by Mine Inspector Alexander McCaugh, of the First Bituminous District.

The information is charged that the fire boss of the mine discovered a portion of the mine that was very gaseous and placed a danger sign in that section. It is alleged that Gatehouse, the mine foreman, discovered the sign and tore it down and ordered a gang of men into that section to work. The action of the mine foreman was reported to the mine inspector, who at once ordered the arrest of Gatehouse.

The ill-fated mine of the Pittsburgh-Buffalo Company at Marianna gave up only last November over 160 dead bodies as the result of an explosion and the mine inspector stated yesterday that every precaution would be taken by his department to prevent another such catastrophe.

TURTLE SOUP PLentiful.

NORMALVILLE, July 29.—(Special.)—Turtle soup has adorned almost every table in this vicinity for the past three days. The reservoir of the Mountain Water Supply Company has been discovered to be full of the most beautiful turtles going. Ten and twelve pounds have been caught in the pure waters of the reservoir and they are at for any price. During the past three days more than 100 turtles have been taken, and almost every day it is possible to see some one carrying home a turtle. Several Connelville people have participated in the turtle slaughter and the soup.

COAL MAGNATES
BEFORE THE BOARD

J. V. Thompson and Others Give Their Views Upon West Virginia Coal Assessments.

CLARKSBURG, July 29.—Joseph V. Thompson, of Uniontown, coal magnate and his attorney, A. B. Fleming of Fairmont, were before the county board of review Wednesday, seeking reductions of assessments of coal properties owned by Mr. Thompson, J. R. and J. E. Barnes, A. J. Cochran and R. E. Umber in Tennessee district in this county. There are seven tracts in all and Assessor Ernest L. Pigott had placed a value of $85,000 on all the property. The petitioners asked that it be reduced to $32,000 and offered written testimony to show that is the proper amount.

The board is having some difficulty in arriving at a decision in the Thompson coal matter and it will likely take a recess until next week before coming to a definite conclusion.

Coal land charged to J. Q. Van Swearingen, trustee, in Union district, at 2120.73 acres was changed to 92 acres at $36, 315 and six-sevenths of the original tract at $7,051. The change was because of a reduction of acreage.

Of the several tracts 271.35 acres are owned by Messrs. Barnes, Cochran and Thompson, another of 560.10 acres by them, 59.84 acres by J. R. Barnes and R. E. Umber, 743.07 by Thompson, 17 acres by J. R. Barnes, 129.37 by Thompson, J. E. Barnes and Cochran and 11,647.52 by the Messrs. Barnes, Cochran and Thompson.

Peter I. Lynch was charged with 221 acres of deep coal in Tennessee district at $1,000 and Peter I. Lynch and others were charged with 248 acres of coal other than the Pittsburgh vein on Turkey run at $1,000.

IMPORTANT CHANGE
IN W. & J. FACULTY

Prof. H. Ford Allen Returns to Accept the Chair of Greek Held By Prof. Arthur A. Hays.

The first public announcement of the fact that Prof. Arthur A. Hays has resigned the chair of Greek in the W. & J. college faculty, and that he would be succeeded by Prof. H. Ford Allen, a former member of the W. & J. faculty, is made in the current number of the Washington and Jefferson College Bulletin. Under college miscellany are these paragraphs: "Prof. Arthur A. Hays, '35, who has filled the chair of Greek in the college for the past four years, has accepted a call to McCormick Theological seminary in Chicago. He will enter upon his new work in the fall."

"It will be welcome news to the many friends in Washington of Professor and Mrs. Hamilton Ford Allen who were connected with the college from 1902 to learn that they are to return. Professor Allen has accepted the professorship of Greek made vacant by the resignation of Professor Hays. Professor Allen left here, in 1905 to accept the chair of Latin at Princeton during the absence of Dean West at the Classical school in Rome. After two years at Princeton he was chosen to a professorship at the University of Illinois, which he resigns to return to this college. Few men have received a better training for the teaching of Greek than has Professor Allen and it may confidently be expected that the high standard of the department will be maintained under his instruction."

HUMIDITY INTENSE

Weather Conditions. This Morning Were Not of Pleasant Variety.

In spite of the cloudy weather and threatening rain today promises to set a new record for heat. The mercury got a running jump this morning at 77, a degree better than yesterday, and kept on climbing. The humidity was intense, too, which made things feel really warmer than they were.

Yesterday came near making a new record for the mercury got up to 89. There seemed at noon to be a good chance that the thermometer might have the edge on yesterday's mark.

TREASURER RUTTER PAYS OFF BONDS.

Will Lift Three Refunding Bonds Saturday Amounting to $1,500.

LEAVES $20,000 YET TO PAY

Bonds Issued in 1897 and $15,000 Has Been Paid Since First Ones Became Due—First National Bank Took Up the Entire Issue at 3 1/2 Per Cent.

Borough Treasurer T. W. Rutter is making arrangements to pay off three old refunding bonds which will reduce the borough debt by $1,500. These bonds are of the issue of 1897, when an issue of $35,000 was floated by Town Council to clear up some existing indebtedness. These bonds were purchased by the First National Bank, the interest being 3 1/2 per cent.

Borough Treasurer Rutter on Saturday will turn over $1,500, which will cancel three of the bonds, Nos. 28, 29 and 30. He will also pay about $360 interest on the bonds which remain outstanding.

Besides clearing off these refunding bonds, Mr. Rutter will pay out $420 interest on the outstanding sewer improvement bonds. This will leave $20,000 unpaid refunding bonds and $21,000 sewer bonds to be paid for.

With the refunding bonds cleared off Saturday it will make 30 of these which have been cancelled since the first three were lifted in 1899. Three are paid off every year.

Borough Treasurer Rutter has the details of the various bond issues at his finger tips and never has to be reminded when interest or principal becomes due.

Tax Collector George B. Brown and C. M. Miller this morning turned over to the borough their collections of the first 60 days following the receipt of the borough duplicate. Mr. Brown had the largest pile to turn in, as he collects on the East Side, in Greenwood and the East Park addition. Miller having only the West Side. The total amount turned in up to this time was $32,233.35.

Of this sum Mr. Brown collected $29,368.28 and Miller got $2,865.07. The amount contributed into each fund follows: General Fund, by Brown, $18,238.78; by Miller, $5,178.66; Sinking Fund, Brown, $2,213.08; Miller, $544.68; Library Fund, Brown, $1,131.17; Miller, $138.25; Sewer Fund, Brown, $4,424.43; Refunding Fund, Brown, $3,329.57.

ALLEY BLOCKADE GIVEN AS REASON

For Using An Excessive Amount of Profanity Landing Washington in the Lockup.

Sam H. Washington is spending three days the guest of the borough as a consequence of using too much profane language last night. Sam pleaded mitigating circumstances but the plea didn't work with Burgess Evans. Sam's complaint is that the Kobers family blocks the alley wherein he resides on the West Side, and claims they do it intentionally. Last night Sam returned home with a couple of beers beneath his belt and found a wagon up at his front door. He says he saw the Kobers boys around the wagon and told them to take the vehicle out of the way. The kids only laughed and then Sam said some uncomplimentary remarks to them. They claim he made threats to shoot them, but Samuel denied the allegation. Burgess Evans fined him $10 with the 72 hour alternative. Sam took the alternative.

Patrick Hanlon of town was given 48 hours for taking on too many drinks yesterday. Three men charged with disorderly conduct posted for $5 each and did not appear for a hearing.

Get Garbage Furnace.

A contract for the erection of a steel garbage furnace has been let by the Borough Council of Tarentum to Decatur Incinerator Company at a price of $11,900.

TROOPS REVIEWED BY MOONLIGHT.

An Unusual Spectacle Pulled Off at Somerset Encampment.

CROWDS WERE NOT THERE

Some of the Men Dropped Out of Line,
But None of Them Are Seriously Sick—Five Separate Engagements
in Great Show Battle.

SOMERSET, Pa., July 29.—A moonlight review by Brig. Gen. Willis J.
Hullings and his staff presented the most picturesque scene of the Second brigade encampment. The brigade review, regarded as the most imposing feature of each year's camp, was to have been held Tuesday before Gov. Edwin B. Stuart but it had to be postponed on account of rain. While hundreds watched the moonlight spectacle, the eager crowds that occupied every vantage point Tuesday, only to be disappointed, were not here.

The regiments formed at 7 o'clock in front of brigade headquarters with the artillery and cavalry on the left and massed bands on the right, each regiment headed by its commanding officer. They marched in columns of companies past Gen. Hullings, who, with his staff, all mounted, stood in front of his headquarters. It was dark when the moonlight started the review and the moon was up before the Eighteenth regiment, which led,
passed the brigadier general.

About 15 men dropped while waiting in line preparatory to the review.
In the Sixteenth regiment six men fell inside of three minutes from exhaustion following the hard maneuver work under a hot sun. All were taken to regiment hospitals in field ambulances. None of the cases is regarded as serious.

The first war maneuvers of the week were held yesterday. Five separate engagements were conducted at different points within a radius of five miles from camp. Opposing forces were designated as blues and browns. In each engagement the problem provided by the regular army officers assigned to the camp was one of attack for one side and defense for the other.

The second and third battalions of the Eighteenth regiment, commanded by Lieut. Col. James H. Higgins, was opposed by the first and second battalions of the Sixteenth regiment, commanded by Lieut. Col. James McEl-hinney, the first battalion of the Fifth regiment, commanded by Maj. John C. Dunkle, was opposed by the second battalion of the same regiment, commanded by Maj. Harry W. Fee, the third battalion of the Sixteenth, commanded by Maj. Clyde D. Wilcox, was opposed by the first battalion of the Eighteenth, commanded by Maj. E. L.
Kearns; the second battalion of the Tenth, commanded by Maj. H. W.
Coulter, was opposed by the first battalion of the Tenth, commanded by Capt. George C. Barr, of Company Y, the first battalion of the Fourteenth commanded by Maj. William S. Mc-Kee, was opposed by the second battalion of the same regiment, commanded by Maj. Franklin Blackstone.

A regular army officer umpired each of the seven battles, which were very realistic.

No decisions were given by the umpires, who however pointed out practical errors made by commanding officers. Most of the regiments had a half a day off for comparative relaxation yesterday, following the arduous work imposed in the morning hundreds, including Gen. Hullings, watched an inter-company field meet,
held by the Fifth regiment in the parade ground. Every company and the band was represented in the event.
Company F of Indiana county easily carried off the honors, winning 99 points, against 51 gained by its nearest competitor, Company E.

HAIR TELLS CHARACTER.

Color of Hair Said to Indicate a Person's Temperament.

Many people believe that blonde, or light hair denotes affection and dark hair constancy. A person without hair is not devoid of character, far from it. The disposition of the hair, age baldheaded man is to show such colicitude for the welfare of others, that he neglects himself. A germ leaves baldness, Prof. Sabouraud, of Paris, France, inoculated a rabbit with Dandruff germ, causing it to become totally bald in five weeks' time.
To rid the scalp of these dangerous germs it is necessary to apply New-

FAMOUS WAX ARTIST.

Mme. Tussaud Had an Exciting and Dramatic Career.

This is the story of Mme. Tussaud, who was born in Berns in 1760 and died in London in 1850, and who, during the stormy time of the French revolution, modeled in wax some of the heads that fell by the guillotine.

Marie Gresholtz was the daughter of an old-decamp of General Wurms in the Seven Years' war. She was born after the death of her father.
Her mother was the sister of Dr.
John Christopher Corlius of Berns.
This Dr. Corlius had made many anatomical and other models in wax and had attracted the attention of the Princes de Conti. This nobleman urged Curlius to come to Paris and establish himself as a modeler in wax.

The Curlius studio became the rendezvous of the fashionable world, and in connection with this he had a museum of curiosities. Among his patrons were Voltaire, Jean Jacques, Rousseau, Mennier, Mirabeau, Diderot, Benjamin Franklin, Paul Jones and many other notable persons.

In his visits to his sister at Berns
Dr. Curlius had taught his niece, Marie, many of the secrets of modeling in wax. She showed such ability in this that her uncle urged her mother to make a home with him in Paris and to allow him to adopt Marie as his daughter.

Marie began earnest study with Dr.
Curlius, and she was so skillful in the modeling of wax flowers that this art became a craze. Even the royal personages in the palace took it up, and Marie spent some time giving lessons to Mme. Elizabeth, the young sister of Louis XVI.

When the revolution broke out Dr.
Curlius took the side of the people and sent for Marie to come from the palace. It was rather singular that two of his wax models should have played a foremost part in the opening scenes of that awful period. In his collection of models was a bust of the minister, Necker, father of Mme. de Stael, and one of Philippe, duke of Orleans. Two days before the storming of the Bastille a mob took these two busts from his museum in the Palais Royal, dropped them in black craps to show their sympathy and started to parade the streets with these.

As the procession filed across the Place Vendome a troop of dragons and one of the regiments charged. A sword stroke cut the bust of Necker in halves, and the man who was carrying it was hit by a musket ball in the leg and received the thrust of a sword in his breast.

The bust of the Duke of Orleans escaped injury, but in the fight to defend it several persons were killed.
The soldiers made desperate efforts to demolish it.

At the taking of the Bastille Dr. Curlius was active and for his services to France was rewarded by the national assembly. A badge of honor was presented to him, and this was inscribed with the famous date and a memorial of his bravery and patriotism. His house was a favorite place of meeting with the leaders of the revolution, so Marie had an opportunity to see them all.

There was only one time when Marie was in any danger during this desperate period. She was "suspected" and sent to prison. Here at the same time was Mme. de Beaumarchais, who had barely escaped the guillotine and who was later the Josephine of Napoleon.
Beaumarchais' name was also on the list of Marie's release from prison and she came out in time to see the downfall of Robespierre, Danton and Desmoulins.

In the days of their power she had been called to model the heads of many who fell by the guillotine. She was obliged to take them just after the fall of the fatal knife. She did this awful work with the hands of poor
Marie Antoinette and of the Princess Lamballe, the queen's friend. When the leaders suffered by the guillotine in their turn she modeled their heads.

After the revolution her uncle died,
and in 1795 she married Dr. Tussaud.
She could not overcome the shock of her experiences during the revolution, and she persuaded her husband to take her and the valuable collections of wax models left her by Dr. Curlius over to England.

They established this collection in the Strand. The collection was taken all about the country, and in 1833 it was brought back to London and made a permanent exhibition. Her sons conducted the business, and she took an active share in this till she was eighty years of age.—Boston Globe.

Itching Stopped—Skin Cooled.
Itching skin diseases afflict some people as soon as the hot weather comes. There seems to be no preventive; but when the eruption does break out it is a very simple matter to stop that itch, and to stop it instantly.

Just a few drops of Oil of Winter-green, properly compounded, washed over the eruption will soothe and smooth the skin instantly, giving that cooling and refreshing sensation.

Try a few drops of this D D D
Compound and your itch will be relieved at once, not in half an hour, or ten minutes but in five seconds. Call at our store and we will tell you more about this D D D Compound.

to teach him a lesson she said, "Sam-

"For $1.06," answered Samuel promptly, "but you said I wasn't to tell anybody."

THURSDAY EVENING, JULY 29, 1909.

GIVING THE GUILTY
MAN A CHANCE.

The suspension of sentence in the case of a Fayette county justice, charged with extortion and shooting with intent to kill, under promise that he would move to West Virginia and stay there, may be the desirable riddance of an Undesirable Citizen, but is it fair to West Virginia?

The answer to this query depends upon how the banished Pennsylvanian shall behave himself on the soil of the Mountain State. In its environment, after his bitter experiences in Fayette county, he may see the folly of devious ways and depart therefrom forever, in which event he will become a welcome addition to West Virginia's citizenship; otherwise, the West Virginia authorities may feel obliged to pass him along to another State.

The justice and wisdom of banishment as a punishment depends wholly upon circumstances. In the case under consideration it seems that the court was loath to punish the prisoner's innocent family for his sins, and so gave him in another community another chance to "make good."

It is proper to temper justice with mercy, but the rule is not practiced as much as it might and should be. Most criminals are given the full punishment prescribed by law, and when they have served their terms and lawfully expiated their offenses, they are virtually ostracized by their neighbors when they return to their homes; and, if they take up a residence in another community seeking a new life and another chance, they are usually betrayed by meddlesome or malicious gossip.

Their sins thus pursue them. The law is satisfied, but the public is not. The jailbird is despised and distrusted. He is not given a decent chance to make an honest living. There is only one avenue open to him. Criminal he was, criminal he is still regarded and criminal he again becomes. Once more he is caught in the coils of the law and justice smiles with superior air and says, "I told you so."

Taken on the barest suspicion, the ex-criminal's record is against him. It is frequently sufficient to condemn him. The theory of the law, that the accused is innocent until proven guilty, does not apply to him. In his case the law is ignored. He is presumed to be guilty unless he can prove himself innocent.

The cruel injustice of this condition, and the bad public policy of compelling a man once convicted of crime to remain in the criminal class, in spite of his repentance and his earnest desire to lead a better life, is becoming better understood in this nation of free and fair people and principles. There is a more general disposition to permit the man who stumbled to recover his uprightness, and even to help him to his feet if he shows evidence of a desire to reform.

As a result of this public sentiment, suspensions of sentences are common in the courts, and the practice has moved the legislature of Pennsylvania to enact a law creating the indeterminate sentence, the object of which is to make the punishment fit not only the crime but also the measure of the criminal's evidences of a desire to return to honest citizenship and useful life instead of being a charge upon the people.

The indeterminate sentence is in the discretion of the court and some judges of the sterner sort have repudiated it, but public opinion on the whole endorses it. It is an experiment worth a trial. The law punishes people not out of a spirit of revenge, but as a deterrent to crime; its aim is to make good citizens, not to perpetrate a class of criminals.

In the case under consideration, the banishment of a bad Pennsylvanian may be the making of a good West Virginian.

The modern coke region melon patch is located in a box car, but isn't any harder to climb into the car than it is to climb over a fence, and, to the mind of some juveniles with conscience-strangling appetites it is no greater sin to steal from the railroad company than it is to steal from the farmer. It is to be hoped that the efforts of the B. & O. railroad detectives may result in the enlightenment of the rising generation in this community.

The Young is on another low.

A divorce-hunting husband accuses his dead-and-dumb wife of avowing at him in the star language. Abuse with the fingers is sometimes as scolding to the man as abuse with the tongue.

Cashier Rinehart's financial troubles press him to the pen.

Perhaps the owners of some of the Pittsburgh coal lands in West Virginia would be glad to get the assessor's price for it.

Portillo Diaz has been an intelligent and patriotic ruler of Mexico, but he has also been a persistent President, and some of the more ambitious citizens of the republic are inclined to think there is such a thing as too much of a good thing.

The Greensburg Tribune says: "Editor Cooke of the Uniontown News Standard and Editor Henry F. Snyder of the Connelville Courier, are engaged in an editorial exercise over the P stands for in the middle of the Connelville contemporary's name. Snyder spells it Providence. The Tribune rather thinks it is Henry F. Snyder. And doubtless there are some less admiring brethren who will insist that it spells Ave-cu-Polse, but, of course, they wouldn't be very good spellers. We might add that we fear the editors who have been deceived into thinking that we don't know how to spell our own name are too serious minded to appreciate Fayette county jokes.

"Gumshoe Bill" Stone of Missouri has collided with the Pennsylvania railroad. The collision made an awful noise, but the railroad is still running.

The hot weather, like the poor, seems to abide with us.

Justice Donaldson left no Farewell Address. He was content to leave without doing the Cantillane act.

The Republican Whip in the present Congress has no crack and no crack, no noise, but it rounds 'em up every time.

Men may cry, "Peace! Peace!" but there is no peace for the strenuous journalist. Editorial warfare is never-ending. It is no sooner subdued in one community than it bursts furiously forth in the next. The Besantown Tanners have covered their vats and the Mud Island mud-slingers have shoveled their mud, but now comes the real test—whether the tanners will be a bunch of bile that threatens the sanitary condition of the literary atmosphere of Westmoreland's Capital.

The trunk mysteries multiply and deepen.

The Wrights have a wholesome respect for their necks. They prefer to keep a President waiting than to aviate in the wrong air.

We hope West Virginia will not tax our Undesirable Citizens any higher than our desirable coal.

Unlabeled merchants are enterprising advertisers. They run to full pages printed in ruddy red.

Mining experts are divided as to the economic of center or side headings, but perhaps circumstances alter cases.

Oblique's mounts are said to be short-legged. It wouldn't be wonderful if they were bow-legged, too.

Postmasters are getting the benefit of better business in increased salaries.

Diaz is under fire, but not for the first time.

The successful establishment of practical airships will demolish some established principles of law and some settled policies of government. For example, it will be impossible to enforce rights of property in the air or to collect tariff duties from flying freight—superior air and says, "I told you so."

Taken on the barest suspicion, the ex-criminal's record is against him. It is frequently sufficient to condemn him. The theory of the law, that the accused is innocent until proven guilty, does not apply to him. In his case the law is ignored. He is presumed to be guilty unless he can prove himself innocent.

HOT WEATHERETTES.

WASHINGTON
CORRESPONDENCE.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—John Dwight is probably the happiest member of Congress. He is the large, round smiling, and wealthy Representative from the 30th District of New York, hails from the town of Dryden, and, since "Jim" Watson, of Indiana, voluntarily gave up his seat in the House to make an unsuccessful race for the Governorship, has been the Republican "Whip."

It is because he is the Whip that Dwight hustles from the Capitol to the White House and from the White House to the House office building, and leaves an audible chuckle floating out in the wake of his big automobile. At last he has a real object in life, and is "making good." Of course Dwight had a life object, in a way, before he was given the shoes of the late lamented Watson, but things come so easy to him that it was hardly worth while existing. He had so much money that he did not know how to spend it, he never had any opposition in his races for Congress, and, being quite plump, was of an easy-going disposition and did not get "set up" over things that occurred in Congress.

So he came to be regarded as a sort of fat smile and not a single newspaper or man in Washington thought him worth while interviewing on any possible subject. Then along came the vacancy in the Whip job. Splash! There was a sound of a heavy body striking the water and before anybody knew how it came to pass, John Dwight had the place, and Jimmy Burke, of Pittsburgh, who had been breaking his dear little neck to get it, was left out in the chilly.

The job of Whip is no feather in the coat, but it is a feather in the coat. He does not wield a black snake, nor a buggy lash, nor any other kind of real physical punisher, as might be supposed from the term. He is the man that is supposed to round up the votes when they are needed by his party on the floor. The Democratic Whip is Bell, of Georgia, or some body else—it really doesn't matter very much who is acting the part on the minority side. It's the Republican Whip that is counting this session. He is the fellow that will deliver the votes for the President when the tariff bill comes up for passage. If there aren't enough votes in sight when the critical "moment" approaches, Dwight will get them there and get them there quick. He'll hop into his big touring car and go after them. And if he finds them he can gamble on it that he'll not take no for an answer.

Dwight stands over six feet and could pick up almost any ordinary member and carry him into the presence of the Speaker and make him vote whether he wanted to or not. Dwight's automobile possibly had something to do with his getting the job.

The chief beauty about Dwight aside from his money and his auto, is the fact that all the members know he has no personal axes to grind. They realize that he is hustling like the mischief for the good of the party. Neither does he put on airs about his job. He tells them that he is simply a messenger, that he is sent to do this, and that, and he is going to do it or know the reason why.

Other Whips, both Republican and Democratic, have grown "cheaty" with importance gained from frequent consultations with the President and the leaders of Congress. The only change noticed in Dwight is that he is happier than he ever was before in his life.

Morning

FOR TWO WEEKS CAMPING TRIP

Have a Complete Outfit of Their Own and Carry a Little German Band, a Chef and Two Assistants—Nineteen in the Party.

SCOTSDALE, July 28.—The Scottdale Outing Club will leave here in a special car over the Pennsylvania railroad for a 14-day stay at camp at North Girard next Monday morning at 7:35. Their camp will be located on the shores of Lake Erie, a mile from North Girard and at the mouth of Elk creek. The time in camp will be spent in fishing, and the usual camp relaxation. Several members of the club are planning trips to Buffalo, Niagara Falls and other nearby points of interest.

Ben Evans, who is something of an expert bowler and a learned baseball sharp, so that he will go further for sporting laurels, and will attempt to break the world's record for fishing in Lake Erie. Others make claims, all catching many fish just now before the trip.

The club carries a complete camping outfit of its own, which it has had for previous annual outings, and which is said to be one of the best camp outfits to be found. The club is a regular organization, governed by a constitution and by-laws, among the rules being one strictly prohibiting the use of any intoxicating beverages in or about the camp.

There will be 10 members in the party and will be accompanied by a cook and two assistant cooks. The following members will take part in the outing: B. T. Smith, William Shannon, R. E. Morford, Benjamin Evans, Frank M. Wise, G. K. Shamer, Albert Francis, C. W. Lipps, C. E. Trimble, M. E. McArdle, T. P. McArdle, T. W. Lennan, W. P. Mellinger, Roy Reed, Ed. O'Neil, Charles King, Oleon King, James Murray and Edward Horzorg.

Charles Tyler of Mt. Pleasant will be the cook and John Hall and John Quarrels will be the assistants. The club will carry a little German band and will entertain visitors with high class music. All visitors will be welcome and particularly those from Scottdale and vicinity.

LEAPS TO HIS DEATH

Boy Playing Leapfrog Jumps Down
Seven-story Airshaft.

New York, July 28.—The fact that James Graham, twelve years old, was one of the best leapfrog players among his companions is a contributing cause to his presence in St. Vincent's hospital, where he is dying with a fractured skull, seven broken ribs and internal injuries.

James was playing leapfrog on the roof of a seven-story tenement when he made such a long leap over the back of another boy that, instead of landing on the roof of the house, he went down the airshaft, seven stories, to the bottom.

GREAT RUSH FOR LAND

Nearly Fifty Times As Many Applicants Than There Are Homesteads.
Spokane, Wash., July 28.—So great is the rush of applicants for Indian reservation lands to be drawn on Aug. 3 that land department officers have placed an order for 50,000 more registration blanks.

With little more than half the time for registration passed, Superintendent Witten has received 148,965 applications. It is figured that there are about 5,400 homesteads available on the Kallapui, Spokane and Coeur d'Alene reserves.

T. C. KENNEY IN HOSPITAL.

Owner of Scottdale House Is Operated On.

SCOTSDALE, July 28.—Theodore C. Kenney, proprietor of the New Scottdale House, was operated on yesterday in a Pittsburgh hospital for kidney trouble from which he has been suffering for sometime. He withstood the operation very well, and seemed to be getting along well last night.

Ending a Letter.

The simplicity of "Forever" as a letter ending would have astounded Jeremy Taylor, whose letters to John Evelyn often wind up with perfect triumphs of complexity in this respect. His last is, "Believe me that I am, in great heartiness and dearness of affection, dear sir, your obliged and most affectionate and endeared friend and servant," or "Your very affectionate friend and hearty servant." Even in his shortest perorations of the kind the "affectionate" and the "servant" are always the two indispensable words. Probably no man, woman or child would combine these two at the end of a letter today.—London Tatler.

Drummen Goes to Erie.

Manager Fred Drummen, formerly of Clarkburg, has taken over the management of the Erie team. Several of the old Clarkburg players went with him to Erie.

JOHN WANAMAKER'S GRANDDAUGHTER TO WED A TITLE.

An international engagement of much importance which has just been announced is that of Miss Fernanda Wanamaker of Philadelphia and Arturo Heeren, son of the Count of Heeren, of Paris and Biarritz. The wedding will take place in the early autumn. Miss Wanamaker is a granddaughter and great favorite of John Wanamaker, the merchant prince, and a daughter of Rodman Wanamaker, who recently married Miss Violet Cruger of New York. Mr. Wanamaker and Miss Cruger were married in London, the wedding being one of the most important social events among Americans abroad in several months.

Naming Their Children.

It was a musical man who gave his four daughters the following names: Dore, Miffa, So-is, Ti-do. The first escaped with the nickname Dore, the second answered Miffy, the third owned up to Bolly, while the youngest generally got Tiddy.

The case of the musical man is matched by that of the provincial printer who named his children from the type fonts he used—Ruby, Pearl, Diamond. The first two are no uncommon names for girls, only Ruby happened to be a boy. He followed in his father's footsteps and afterward became a printer's manager in London.—London Chronicle.

STEEL CORPORATION IN SECOND QUARTER

Shows Conservative Increase of $25,000 Tons—Iron Mill Trade Now Appears the Best.

NEW YORK, July 28.—The American Metal Market and Daily Iron and Steel Report says:

"The increase of only 525,000 tons in the Steel Corporation's unfilled tonnage during the second quarter would appear to indicate that the corporation was more conservative than has been generally assumed in booking orders at the low prices. It is not improbable, however, that the figure of the June 30 total was itself conservative. The earnings reported for the quarter conform to the preliminary estimate with the usual closeness. It is somewhat surprising that the common stock dividend should be increased when a considerable part of the new construction program remains to be appropriated for.

"Wire products were advanced $2 a ton, effective Monday, this following a similar advance May 15, and carrying these products about one-third the way from the low point of May to the average of 1907. The next important advance is likely to be in merchant steel pipe, and will be one point, or $2 a ton, effective next Monday. Steel bars are getting more square on the $1.30 basis, and plates and shapes on the $1.10 basis, putting these products $2 a ton above the level to which they first dropped on the February 18 break, but leaving them $5 below the 1907 level.

"The steel car strikes and the tin plate labor troubles affect Steel Corporation tonnage by something like 5,000 tons a day; in plates, shapes, bars, axles and sheet bars.

"The American Tin Plate Company claims to be running all its non-union mills and 24 of those from which the Amalgamated Association walked out June 30. The Amalgamated Association does not admit more than 10 of the 24, and claims an eight-mill non-union plant besides. The respective claims are therefore 14 and 92 mills, against 202 operated in June.

"Some of the independents are making the greatest output in their history, while the trade as a whole is doing the best of the year. New business is relatively light, but amply sufficient to support production, with the strong basis furnished by specifications hitherto booked.

"Pig iron is quiet but very firm in all markets, while Southern has advanced 50 cents, to $13, Birmingham."

SUN PRANKS.

Irregularities For Which Science Cannot Altogether Account.

The sun is generally looked upon as a model of regularity which never falls in its duty, but the ancient historians mention several instances when it failed to give forth its usual amount of heat and light for periods varying from three hours to several months. Data on the subject have been compiled by the St. Louis Republic.

According to Plutarch, the year 44 B. C. was one in which the sun was "weak and pale" for a period approximating eleven months.

The Portuguese historians record several months of diminished sunlight in the year 1541 A. D., and, according to Humboldt, this unlucky period ended with "strange and startling phenomena, such as loud atmospheric explosions, rifts in the vaulted canopy of blue above and in divers other rare and unaccountable freaks."

In the year 1001, on Sept. 20 (see Humboldt's "Cosmos"), the sun turned suddenly black and remained so for three hours and did not regain its normal condition for several days.

According to the noted Helmholtz's "Solar Energy," the days of seeming inactivity on the part of the sun (the days following the sudden blackening of the great orb) were noted for a peculiar greenish tinge and are marked in old Spanish, French and Italian records as "the days of the green sun."

February, 1106 A. D., is noted in the annals of marvelous phenomena as a month in which there were several days that "the sun appeared dead and black, like a great circular cinder floating in the sky."

"On the last day of February, 1208," says an old Spanish writer on astrology, astrology and kindred subjects, "the sun appeared suddenly to go out, causing a darkness over the country for about six hours." In 1241 the European countries experienced another siege of supernatural darkness, which the superstitious writers of that time attributed to God's displeasure over the result of the great battle of Legnitsa.

Even today there are certain irregularities of the sun that science cannot altogether account for. These are the so-called sun spots—enormous dark spots which appear from time to time on the solar disk and which are supposed to have great influence on the atmospheric conditions of the earth. Scientists have long studied these phenomena, but neither their extent nor periodicity has ever been determined.

TOURED COKE REGION.

James McVicker Says Every Works Needs Men.

James McVicker returned to his home in Monongahela Monday evening after a tour of the coke region, visiting Connellsville, Mt. Pleasant, Uniontown, Latrobe and other points. He says that all the works that he visited are short of men, and the superintendents are looking for more help.

THAW ON STAND AGAIN TODAY

Has Ready Answers For Jerome's Questions.

DECLARES HE IS SANE NOW

Prisoner Smiles With Keen Enjoyment When He Thinks He Has Scored a Point—Members of Thaw Family Elated.

White Plains, N. Y., July 28.—Harry K. Thaw again occupied the witness stand today in the lunacy hearing he instituted to effect his release from the Matteawan asylum for the criminal insane.

Attorney Jerome, the man who twice tried to send him to prison, and who once already has thwarted an effort to release him, delved into his life history. Whatever Jerome and his assistants may make of the examination, to the eye and ear of the layman, Stanford White's slayer showed no signs of insanity on the stand.

Thaw, the members of his family and his retinue of attorneys and experts are unanimous in their opinion that he has proved his fitness to be at large. His friends believe that if he acquiesces himself in the future as well as he has to date Justice Mills will have no choice but to grant his application for release from Matteawan.

On Stand Today and Tomorrow.

But Thaw's ordeal is not over. He will remain on the witness stand today and perhaps tomorrow. The state's attorneys believe that if he is insane he will be more likely to betray himself toward the end when wearied by Jerome's continued hammering.

Neither Thaw nor the New York district attorney displayed anything but the utmost good nature. Frequently the dialogue resembled the chat of friends at an afternoon tea. Sometimes Thaw thought he had scored a point and smiled with great enjoyment. The smile was always reflected on the face of his white-haired mother. Before he took the stand Thaw kissed her on the cheek and frequently at critical points in the examination he shot a reassuring glance in her direction.

Jerome strove to establish Thaw's insanity mainly on his alleged hallucinations regarding Stanford White's treatment of young girls. Time and again he asked the witness' own opinion of his mental state. Thaw's replies in substance were, "I have always been sane mentally. When I killed White I may have been legally insane for a few minutes. I am sane now."

Three years' confinement do not seem to have embittered Thaw. He expressed regret for certain of the more unseemly charges which he made in his will against the man he killed. Although frequently quoted in the past as not regretting his deed, he declared he sometimes felt regret, although any feelings of remorse and horror were diminished, he added, by the strain of the continued legal squabbling of the past three years.

Courtroom Joins in Smile. At times the witness scored on the district attorney so palpably that the whole courtroom joined in his smile of triumph. Nothing pleased him more than the chance to correct Jerome on some minor detail of the evidence of past legal proceedings, which he had at his tongue's end. One characteristic episode occurred when Jerome asked Thaw to explain his hostility to Dr. Allan McLane Hamilton, one of the state's former alienists. Thaw said he did not know exactly why he disliked Hamilton. It was like the case of Dr. Fell, he added.

"Who is Fell?" inquired Jerome insistently.

"Why don't you know?" exclaimed the witness in real or feigned surprise. "Then he quoted the first two lines of the nonsense rhyme:

"I do not like you, Dr. Fell,
The reason why I cannot tell."
Thaw's mood was not always jovial. He gave the first signs of worry when the district attorney returned once to his dislike of Dr. Hamilton and asked a number of questions evidently designed to show that Thaw's prejudice was something violent and abnormal.

Another line of questions that made the witness knit his brows had to do with his relations with Evelyn Nesbit before their marriage. Although it has been alleged that Thaw was broken with his wife and that she was aiding the opposition, he showed a strong desire to shield her name. The young woman herself arrived in the courtroom during this part of the examination and rewarded her husband's evident consideration of her feelings with several radiant smiles. At the same time Thaw showed strong reluctance to letting his wife take the stand and had his attorney invoke the privilege of confidential relations to bar her.

Killing of White Reviewed. Jerome reviewed in detail in a grilling cross-examination the killing of Stanford White, leading Thaw through the night on the Madison square roof.

"Were you crazy when you shot an

HARRY K. THAW AS HE APPEARS AT INQUIRY INTO HIS SANITY

Thaw has aged perceptibly in the three years that have elapsed since he killed Stanford White. He now wears spectacles, and his face is not so full as it was. He is not so nervous as he was during his two trials, and is far more calm under exciting circumstances. This was shown during the present hearing when the court asked Thaw's counsel if he intended to put the witness on the stand. The attorney replied that he had no such intention, but Thaw promptly addressed the court, saying he was perfectly willing to answer any questions the judge cared to ask. Judge Mills thereupon announced that he would examine the prisoner.

unarmed man with his back toward you?" shouted Jerome.

This aroused Thaw, but he held himself in check and calmly said that he knew White was armed and that he was sure White had glared at him before he fired. "I was legally crazy at the time, though," answered Thaw.

Jerome then reviewed the frequent changes of counsel during the trial on the part of Thaw.

"Governor Hughes was my first choice for counsel during my first trial," said Thaw, "because then the jury would know that any witness he put on the stand would tell the truth."

Throughout his examination Thaw leaned over from time to time and whispered to Justice Mills explanations of his testimony. He evidently cared but little for Jerome's cross-examination, but showed plainly that he wanted to impress Justice Mills favorably with his sanity.

TRUNK HOLDS BODY

Death of Aged Pittsburgh Widow Is a Mystery.

Pittsburgh, July 28.—Bruised and the neck broken, the body of Mrs. Annie Graham, fifty-five years old, a widow, was discovered in a blood-stained trunk at her home. She had been dead several days. Deputy Coroner Richard J. Carney thinks the death may have been accidental. Boys peering through a rear window saw the woman's feet and arms protruding from the trunk. A policeman was summoned and broke in the door.

Coroner's deputies and the police are puzzled by features of the case. Mrs. Graham lived alone in two rear rooms of the building. She was last seen alive on Friday by Mrs. Mary Buckley, a neighbor.

Blood stains found in the bottom of the trunk which officials' conditions in the accident theory. It is claimed to be possible the woman was a sufferer from asthma and in a fit of coughing may have been seized with an attack of heart failure and toppled into the trunk. Doors and windows were locked and police are at a loss to discover how a possible murderer could have effected egress, yet the position of the body makes the explanation of how she could have died accidentally while alone equally a puzzle.

SLAPPING WAS JUSTIFIED

Senator Stone Dismissed by Baltimore Police Magistrate.

Baltimore, July 28.—Declaring that in the circumstances the assault was justifiable Police Magistrate Grannan dismissed the charge against Senator William J. Stone of Missouri of having assaulted Lawrence C. Brown, a waiter on a Pennsylvania train.

Justice Grannan said: "Senator Stone, I have traveled a great deal in my time. I can fully appreciate the treatment that you received at the hands of Brown, who it has been shown was discourteous in the extreme. I feel that you had sufficient provocation and that you were absolutely justified in repudiating and striking Brown. I dismiss you."

FOURTH MAN TO DIE

Blain Italian Was Connected With Mysterious Barrel Murder.

Danbury, Conn., July 28.—Search is being carried on vigorously by the police and special officers for the man connected with the shooting to death of Giovanni Zearcone, who was found lying on his doorstep by his son, his head riddled with shot.

Zearcone is the fourth man connected with the mysterious barrel murder in New York in 1933 to meet a violent death.

KILL MANY SPANIARDS.

King Alfonso's Troops and Moors Fight Desperately.

Melilla, Morocco, July 28.—An official report of the recent battle between the Spaniards and the Moors shows that it was one of the most sanguinary of the present campaign.

The engagement was fiercely contested and cost the Spanish forces more than 200 in dead and wounded, the slain including General Planas, two lieutenant colonels, commanding naval contingents and a large number of other officers.

At 9 o'clock in the morning word was received that the Moors had destroyed several hundred yards of railroad connected with the mines, which isolated and imperiled the extreme Spanish post. As it was imperative to restore communication, a convoy supported by two columns was sent out in command of General Planas. While the convoy was communicating with and re-provisioning the stations the Spaniards sustained a terrific fusillade from thousands of Moors, who first fired from the fastnesses of the mountain and then boldly charged in the face of a murderous assault by the Spanish artillery. Spanish officers describe the Moorish loss as enormous.

Reinforcements were hurriedly sent to the support of the convoy and its escort, and these succeeded in repulsing the Moors and driving them back to the hills.

PROTESTS AGAINST RULING

Mrs. Sutton's Counsel Appeals to Secretary of Navy.

Washington, July 28.—Protesting against the action of the court of inquiry which is investigating the death of Lieutenant James N. Sutton, Harry E. Davis, attorney for Mrs. Sutton, appeared to the secretary of the navy to vacate the order of the court by which officers who were with the unfortunate man on the night of the tragedy should be regarded as defendants in the case.

"I am astounded, incensed and outraged at the court's ruling," said Mr. Davis. "I cannot say at this time whether I will remain in the case. My decision in that matter will not be made until I learn what action the navy department takes with regard to my formal protest against the ruling of the court. But you can say that if I am placed in the position of a prosecutor in this case his gloves will be conspicuous by their absence."

UNABLE TO SAVE MASTER

Dog Sat on River Bank and Howled Until Neighbors Came.

Estlin Springs, Ky., July 28.—After trying until exhausted to save his master from drowning a collie dog sat on the bank and howled dimly until he summoned neighbors.

Joseph Brown, a farmer, had been visiting neighbors and started for home. He attempted to cross the Kentucky river in a boat and lost his balance. The boat was overturned and, although the dog did its best, it could not drag the man to the bank.

ATTEMPTS RESCUE IN VAIN

Mother Tries to Save Drowning Daughter and Both Die.

Rochester, N. Y., July 28.—Mrs. Gordon Hoyt and Miss Clara Hoyt, mother and daughter, were drowned at Snug Harbor, near Hammondport. The daughter had gone in bathing and, being seized with cramps, called to her mother. Mrs. Hoyt, who is an expert swimmer, went to the rescue. The daughter was so frightened that she threw her arms about her mother and both were drowned before help

RUSH TROOPS TO BARCELONA.

Every Effort Is Being Made to Crush the Rebellion.

MUCH BLOODSHED IN STREETS

Populace of Spanish City Erect Barri-cades and Fight Desperately—King Alfonso Proclaims Martial Law Throughout Spanish Kingdom.

Madrid, July 28.—The revolution in Catalonia has reached a serious stage. There is much bloodshed and artillery has been employed in the streets of Barcelona to quell the outbreaks. The city is terror-stricken. The revolutionists are reported to be fighting desperately behind barricades. The troops include mounted artillery and the defenses of the rebels have been raked with shot.

King Alfonso hastened back to Madrid from San Sebastian and at once issued a decree proclaiming martial law and the suspension of constitutional guarantees throughout Spain. Orders have been given to the governors of the provinces to crush the revolution at any cost without hesitation and without pity.

An exact estimate of the dead and wounded in the clashes between the troops and rebels in Catalonia is impossible owing to the rigid censorship of private dispatches, and the government has not fixed a total. The government admits, however, that rioters have been killed and wounded in several cities and towns, including Barcelona, Alcoy and Alcanoria.

Details of the latest disturbances at other points are either meager or lacking altogether. There has been rioting at Sagunto, Vendrell, Rojia, Port Bou and Llausan, and a general strike has been declared at Biscaya. At these places there has been much destruction of property.

Barcelona Center of Rebellion.

The center of the rebellion in Barcelona, to which place the government is rushing extra troops. An early dispatch said that the Barcelona revolutionists had been defeated as a result of desperate charges by the troops, but a later dispatch announced that fighting had begun again, the artillery using heavy guns to demolish the barricades. The peaceful section of the population fled in fright to their homes and locked and barred themselves in. A military proclamation has been issued at that city that no life is safe and warning peaceful citizens to remain under cover.

The greatest iniquities reign in Madrid. King Alfonso was closeted until a late hour with Premier Maura and an official note was issued saying that the situation was exceedingly grave and that the rebellion must be repressed with an iron hand, as the Catalonians were struggling to engulf all Spain in revolution.

The minister of the interior has issued an official note, giving a summary of the latest events in Catalonia. At Raus, near Tarragona, serious disorders have occurred. At Alcoy there has been much rioting in the streets, the gendarmes using their carbines and killing or wounding many of the manifestants. At Calahorra the populace invaded the railroad station, destroying the switches and did other material damage which resulted in the blocking of the trains transporting the troops. Soldiers opened fire on the rioters; of whom some were killed.

Official Note Issued.

The note says: "The government has acquired proof that the agitators seek at all cost to produce a seditious movement throughout Spain of a character clearly revolutionary, with the object of preventing the movement of troops and to block the action of the government, especially so far as it concerns the campaign at Melilla."

The hostility of the people against the Moroccan campaign, which has been followed by widespread disturbances, is based on resentment that the nation has been plunged in a foreign war and that the nation's sons are being sacrificed merely because of opposition to a private mining undertaking. The poorer classes, from which the recruits are chiefly drawn, are especially bitter, complaining that the men who can pay $3000 exempt from military service, it is the poor, therefore, who are forced to go to Africa to meet death.

TO FIGHT JOHNSON.

Jeffries Put Up $5,000 To Bind The Match.

New York, July 28.—Actual steps looking to a fight between James J. Jeffries and Jack Johnson for the heavyweight championship of the world were taken when Jeffries, on his arrival from the west, posted $5,000 as a forfeit to bind a match with the negro pugilist for a fight of anywhere from twenty to a hundred rounds.

Jeffries insists that the fight shall be held before the club offering the largest purse and that when articles are signed an additional forfeit of $5,000 shall be posted. The whole sum of $20,000 is to go to the winner of the mill.

CHAPTER V.

WHEN broad minded Mrs. Brooks observed to her husband that she did not understand her mother any more than her mother understood her she had expressed exactly the mental relation in which they stood toward each other. Mrs. Harris was one of those women occasionally to be met with who continue to treat their grownup sons, and especially their grownup daughters, as children and feel it incumbent upon them—nay, consider it their bounden duty—to interfere with advice and comment in the natural progress of domestic sophistication of their young wedded offspring. Moreover, she was a woman wholly lacking in tact and depth of mind and possessed to an exaggerated degree that "quickness of reason," vanity.

Mrs. Harris and Miss Beth Harris were out for a ride with Captain Williams, who accompanied them, and all were in automobile tenue. Her mother and sister greeted Emma enthusiastically. Their escort extended his hand, but Mrs. Brooks was too much occupied for once in responding to her parent's advances to notice it. He stalked in with rude familiarity without removing his automobile cap, upon which he had pushed up his goggles and found himself face to face with Smith.

"Hello! You here?" he said by way of greeting, greatly surprised to see his superintendant there on that above all nights.

"Yes," replied Jimmy. "I'm here again."

"Ought to take a berth here," granted his employer, looking round for the most comfortable chair and installing himself in it. "You're always around."

"Such as possible," admitted Smith tranquilly, remaining standing. "How do you and your new car?"

"Good enough. Cost $5,000—ought to be good—ought to be."

Mrs. Harris and Beth bustled in, throwing open their automobile coats and disclosing very handsome gowns that contrasted strangely with Emma's poor little cotton frock.

"Why, good evening, Jimmy?" cried Mrs. Harris. "Where's Joe?"

"Come out for a walk, I guess," he answered. "Howdy, Beth."

"Where's that young man, Mr. Smith?" responded that young person somewhat indignantly.

"Mr. Smith?" he asked, looking at her curiously.

The girl raised her eyebrows and affected surprise.

"Isn't that right?" she inquired.

"Yes—Smith is the name," he replied. "It ain't that I've forgot it—no—only to remind you that the first one—Jimmy—ain't been changed."

"No, dearie; Jimmy wouldn't know what it meant to be misnamed," observed Mrs. Harris with an intonation of disdain.

"He neither," put in Williams, "but a man's got to get used to it."

"Have you got used to it, captain?" asked Emma.

"Yes and no. I never had it given to me until I came east—always used to be Cap'n Bill or something on that order—but with eastern airs and a bit of prosperity your old ways have got to change."

Mrs. Harris had been gazing about her deprecatingly. She wanted to know why they should stay in the dining room. Emma explained that they had succeeded in inducing the janitor to have the sitting room papered and that it was all upset.

"This ain't bad," commented Captain Williams. "It's real cozy, and you can see a woman's hand in the arrangement."

"But it's a little bit of a stuffy four roomed flat," objected Beth, turning up her pretty nose. "Really, I should die in one."

"Well, Beth," remarked Smith, with his quiet drawl, "you never can tell. Maybe you will."

Beth made a grimace.

"I would, if I had to do my own work, washing dishes—ugh!"

"I don't see how Emma stands it," declared Mrs. Harris. "It's just drug-ery."

"Well, mother, please remember it's Emma who does stand it, after all," retorted that little woman patiently, "so please, please, don't you mind."

"I think it's a great little nook, Mrs. Brooks," opined Williams.

"Thank you, captain," she said gratefully.

"And fixed up nice and comfortable. Can't say as anything looks cheap."

"Thank you again. Perhaps it isn't."

"You know, captain, you ain't the only one who's found out the secret of making a dollar produce 500 cents," said Smith, with his whimsical smile.

"Has he done that?" inquired Mrs. Harris, affecting surprise and admiration.

"Figuratively speaking, I presume," chimed in Beth primly.

"I always thought 500 was figuratively speaking," said Smith.

Captain Williams had produced his pipe, filled it and lighted it without asking permission.

"Smith says I'm close, I'm not!" he declared. "To me business is business. If I've got money nobody gave it to me. I earned what I earned, and then I made that earn more."

"You sure ain't given it an vacation, captain," commented his superintendant dryly.

"And that's right," affirmed Mrs. Harris with some heat. "I believe in men getting money. Mr. Harris was one of those soft hearted men who never made the best of his opportunities—always trying to be fair and square with other men, and what thanks did he get?"

"Mother, please!" remonstrated Emma.

"It's true," went on her parent. "If he hadn't been that way, Emma, do you suppose you'd be here doing your own work?"

"Mother, I insist—you must not!" interrupted Beth. "Emma, you don't deserve this kind of a life."

"But have I complained?" demanded Mrs. Brooks desperately. "Why do you say such things?"

"Because I've got myself to think of," snapped her mother. "You're wasting yourself—led up to the house all the time—and everybody—all my friends know just how you're fixed. You're never invited anywhere any more."

"Completely forgotten," said Beth. Brooks, who had let himself in silently and unobserved, stood to the left irresolutely, watching them and listening to the conversation.

"Please don't," entreated Emma, greatly distressed. "It's my affair, and besides, before people!"

"You might say the captain's almost one of the family since your father died," put in her mother. "I knew you should never have married Joe—that he couldn't take care of you the way he ought."

"It's too late now," said Beth, shrugging her shoulders. "Captain, don't you think Emma should have more?"

"Well, Mrs. Brooks must know her own mind," he replied. "Your father when he worked for me always had a way of his own. But it does seem as if she should at least have a hired girl and more than four rooms to a flat, but—"

Brooks strode into the room, livid with passion, goaded to a white heat of fury, reckless of everything, murder in his heart, and, hurling his hat to the door, faced the company.

"It does seem so, does it?" he fairly hissed, going over to his employer. "You kind, you think so. And what hasn't she? Will you tell me that? Speak! Will you tell me that? I'll tell you why you slave driver!"

Mrs. Harris and Beth sat speechless and pale, but Smith rose.

"Steady, Joe, boy!" he admonished. Emma had hurried to her husband and grasped his arm.

"Oh, Joe, don't!" she implored. "You don't!"

He flung her roughly from him.

"Let me alone!" he shouted and turned to Williams again, quivering with rage. "Do you know why she hasn't?" he continued. "Well, I'll tell you all. It's because this man ain't on the square. He began by cheating and murdering niggers who worked for him aboard his rotten trading ships. Then after he got through with the belying sin, after he got his money, he picked up the salary list for a club, and he's murdered and wounded and maimed with that. You see my wife here? She's only one of hundreds, and she suffers. It is too bad she married me. It is too bad that she's got to do her own work. It is too bad that she's got to wash and scrub and sweat in the heat, but that man's to blame. If you gave me a fair share of what I produce, if you didn't grind down, oppress and pinch, she wouldn't have to. I've worked for you five years, hard, honest, and all the time you've been grinding me down, down, and thousands of others, thousands. You know, all of you know—my mother-in-law and smart sister-in-law know—you've piled up your money on the blood and sweat and misery of others. That's the kind of a man you are, and you might as well know it."

Captain Williams had listened to this denunciation at first in utter amazement. Then his shaggy eyebrows had knitted together, and his little eyes had narrowed to slits, while the blood had spread over his face in a deep glow through the veins that swelled out like cords on his neck and throat.

"There ain't no one ever said they things to me and got away with it!" he thundered, clenching his fists and up her pretty nose. "Really, I should die in one."

"Well, Beth," remarked Smith, with his quiet drawl, "you never can tell. Maybe you will."

Beth made a grimace.

gathering all his tremendous strength as he rose to crush his accuser.

Mrs. Harris and Beth sprang up in great alarm, and at the captain's terrifying roars and his ferocious aspect Brooks shrank back. Smith stood impassive, but watching Williams, toward whom he had been edging.

Emma had stepped quickly between the captain and her husband.

"Please—please, captain—for my sake," she pleaded.

"I don't care—let him come on," cried Brooks doggedly, but his voice faltered.

Williams gazed at the sweet, frail woman standing imploringly before him, and as he gazed his muscles gradually relaxed, the wrath faded from his eyes, and finally the corners of his mouth twitched in a faint smile.

"All right, Mrs. Brooks," he said gently. "I almost forgot where I was. I apologize."

Smith, his hands in his pockets, moved away across the room.

"Joe, you know it's your home—our home," expostulated his wife.

"I—I forgot. Excuse me," he muttered apologetically, looking ashamed.

Smith spoke up, his winning smile lighting his face:

"You know, it's been an all-fired hot day—just the kind of weather when about every mother's son is on edge. Now, Joe, he slipped a cog, and that sort of put the whole concupiscent machine out of gear, including the captain. But now, you see, it's just all forgotten."

"Possibly. As far as I'm concerned I must be going," declared Mrs. Harris coldly.

"Indeed, yes," chimed Beth.

Brooks now, his eyes having spent themselves and his bravado faded out, was almost crying.

"I—I—be began."

But the words choked in his throat, and, picking up his hat, he hastened out of the room and the flat.

"Will you please take us away, captain?" requested Mrs. Harris.

"Just a moment," he said. "Mrs. Brooks, I'm mighty sorry about what happened just now."

"I—I'd rather you wouldn't speak of it," she told him.

"Perhaps I have been a little hard," he said earnestly and apologetically. "I want you all to understand that"

There is a certain young New York broker whose recent and experience in endeavoring to pull the wool over his wife's eyes has led him to declare "Never again."

Now, it is the broker's custom to take a 5:30 suburban train, thus enabling him to reach his home in Westchester in ample time for the early dinner that both he and his wife like.

The other day he fell. Meeting an old college mate, he yielded to the latter's entreaties for an evening in town. The next step was, of course, to telegraph the wife, which he did in these terms:

Unavoidably detained. Missed the 5:30. Home later.

When hubby finally did show up, he observed an expression on the countenance of his spouse that argued the failure of his little fib.

"What's the trouble, dear?" he asked, with an affected nonchalance.

"I've lived a hard life with hard people. Since the day I shipped before the mast in a North Pacific sealer I learned what a cuff and a blow was; what rotten grub, the scurvy and all them things meant, and I knew that the only thing between them things and comfort, decency and the respect of folks was money. I started to get money, and maybe I have been a little hard—just a little hard."

"No one would call you easy, captain," agreed Smith.

"Anyway, Mrs. Brooks," continued Williams, "Joe keeps his job, and it ain't going to make a bit of difference between us."

"Not the least?" she asked, with wonder.

"Certainly not," said Mrs. Harris. "Joe," declared Beth languidly, "was absurd. He quite bores me."

Smith smiled at her and injected a good deal of irony into his tone as he said:

"Yes, you looked as if something was wrong, Beth."

The captain approached Mrs. Brooks with an attempt at gallantry that was eloquent and grotesque and seized her hand, which she suffered to remain limply in his clasp.

"Well, Mrs. Brooks," he said, "if it's all squared up will come riding with us, won't you?"

"Not tonight. You will excuse me," she replied.

"Certainly," he assured her, warmly shaking her hand as though it were a pump handle. "Good night."

"Good night," she answered. Then she advanced to receive the parting kisses of her mother and sister, which were a good deal less cordial than those with which they had greeted her on their arrival. Their osculatory reserves seemed to have been kept in cold storage during the interval.

The fact that in the engrossing ceremony of leave-taking with Mrs. Brooks everybody forgot to be polite enough to say good night to Smith did not ruffle his equanimity in the least.

The Scrap Book

DIDN'T MATTER MUCH.

He Had Blundered Anyhow Before He Sent the Letter.

The love-lorn young man ran up the steps and was met at the door by a very pretty young lady.

"Constance," he said eagerly as he held out his hand to her, "did you get my letter this morning?"

"No," curiously returned she. "I presume Vivian took it."

"Vivian?" The avian blushed profusely. "Why, that letter was addressed to you!"

"Yes, but Vivian and I are twins and look alike, you know. Indeed, our most intimate friends often mistake each for the other."

"But your names are nothing alike," stammered the bewildered young man. "I wrote 'Constance Withers' very plainly on the outside of that letter. I don't see how any such mistake could be made."

"Oh, it wasn't a mistake! Anyhow, it doesn't make much difference."

"What? Constance, that letter contained more than you think! In it I made apology for my too ardent notions before you last night, and, furthermore, I sent it to ask you if—"

"But it belonged to Vivian!"

"Are you crazy? I beg pardon! I meant—goodness, gracious! How has Vivian anything to do with the letter?"

"Because when you made love last night you mistook Vivian for me!"

USED AGAINST HER.

Congratulations the Actress Received on Her Engagement.

A London music hall belle who had just successfully "blundered" an old and wealthy nobleman used an unpopular manager, alleging that he had not paid her sufficiently well for her engagement at his hall. She won the case and was immediately inundated with flowery congratulations from her friends, all of whom were glad to see the manager go down.

Not content with her victory, however, the belle must needs crow over her beaten manager by packing up the choicest of these telegrams and dispatching them to his house, with the intimation that he might make what use of them he thought proper.

She regretted this last concession the next morning. Taking her at her word, the manager posted the telegrams on a board outside the music hall, headed them "What Miss Flights' friends think of her engagement" and left the public to assume which engagement, the professional or the matrimonial, was meant.

Then followed such messages as "Good for you, old girl!" "Pinned the old horror at last!" "Don't let him wiggle off the hook!" "Stick to him till you get the blues!" "Congratulations on your splendid haul!"

Another action for damages against the manager is now pending.

SNAPSHOTS TAKEN WHEN PRESIDENT SAW SIXTY MILE AN HOUR AEROPLANE FLIGHT.

President Taft witnessed the fastest aeroplane flight ever made on this continent when he went to Fort Myer and saw Orville Wright circle the parade ground several times in the flying machine at a sixty mile an hour clip. The President, who was accompanied by nearly all of Washington, official-rotunda, also with two men in the aeroplane, Lieutenant Foulis and Lt. Orville Wright, who were selected for one of these flights. The course to Alexandria was marked by small captive balloons anchored at a height of 300 feet. The accompanying pictures show the Wrights congratulated the aviators, and they promptly notified the signal corps officers that so soon as the course toward Alexandria was marked they would be ready for the official flights. One of these is an endurance flight with two men in the machine and the other a straight away flight of five miles and return, also with two men in the aeroplane. Lieutenants Foulis and Lt. Orville Wright were selected for one of these flights. The course to Alexandria was marked by small captive balloons anchored at a height of 300 feet. The accompanying pictures show the Wrights and various government officials watching the machine in air. The figures in group No. 1 (left to right) are: Charles Bennett, Secretary, United States; Senator Elkins, Colonel Girard, Senator Nelson, Major Sailer and Major Foulis. No. 2 shows the machine in flight and the starting derrick; No. 3, Lieutenant Foulis; and Orville Wright; No. 4, machine in full flight with two passengers; No. 5, Wilbur Wright and Lieutenant Lamm.

Without a word the wife handed him the telegraph slip, indicating with her forefinger the words: "Received at 4:45."—Lippincott's.

Christening the Twins.

In an English village a miner's wife presented him with twins. At the usual time the twins had to be christened, and George, his wife and his friends proceeded to the church to fix the names of the children. The minister asked the father the names of the twins, and he quite properly replied: "Steak and Kidney, sir!"

"Come, come!" replied the minister. "These are odd names for your children."

"What I've meant, George!" cried his wife. "It's Kate and Sidney."

"Are, it is, sir. As though it was like a snail to eat!" shouted George promptly.

Aim High.

To the formation of a good character it is of the highest importance that you have a commanding object in view and that your aim in life be elevated. Set your standard high, and though you may not reach it you can hardly fail to rise higher than if you aimed at some inferior excellence.—Joel Hawes.

Temperament Doesn't Count.

They hadn't seen each other for several years, the two women. They looked at each other, afraid to ask after their husbands. Finally one spoke.

"You know," she said, "that my husband and I are no longer living together. He left me flat on my back in a hospital. He wrote me that he thought all artists should have their freedom, that they should not be bound by family ties. I suppose, with a sigh, 'that it was what one would call the artistic temperament.'"

"It is not altogether confined to artists," said the other woman. "My husband was a plumber, and he did the same."

He Could Go.

At the death of the Duke of Wellington the whole diplomatic corps was invited to the funeral at St. Paul's. The French ambassador on receiving his invitation was very much upset. He hurried off to his colleague of Russia, Baron Brunnow, and confided to him the difficulty in which he was placed.

"The queen," he said, "expects us to go to St. Paul's to the funeral of the Duke of Wellington. How can I go, considering the injuries which the duke inflicted on my country? What shall I do?"

Baron Brunnow listened gravely to his colleague's exposition and then replied, "As the duke is dead," he said, "I think you can safely go to the funeral. If you were asked to attend his resurrection I should say refuse the invitation."

Life.

Life is a good deal of a puzzle, but if we were more resolute in our determination to enrich it by worthy service than we are in our desire to solve its mysteries we should be happier. If we put more into it we should get more out of it.—Epworth Herald.

ROOT JUICE IS DOING IT

SCORES OF LOCAL PEOPLE PRAISING IT.

These last days of the Root Juice demonstrations at Graham & Company's drug store, it is hard to get the great medicine in fast enough to supply the demand. The scientist said: "While many people of Connelville are surprised at the sales at this point it is not surprising to me, as at Ft. Wayne, Akron, Zanesville and many other points, the demand for the Juice is so great that the people at the laboratory at Fort Wayne are often belated with orders as much as two weeks."

Those who are interested in the remedy should go to the drug store and listen to the reports of the dozens of people that are calling daily. Among the many to testify to the great good Root Juice is a doctor here in Connelville who is a well-known business man who said: "My wife has been a long sufferer from catarrh of the stomach, bowels and bladder; her kidneys were so badly deranged she suffered a great deal with pains in the small of her back and stomach and bowels, her tongue was coated and she always had a bad taste in her mouth; she was very nervous, sleep did not refresh her. In fact she had so many pains and they were frequently so severe that she couldn't tell what part of the body pained the most. She has treated with doctors for months at a time and took many kinds of medicines, but was growing worse all the time. Of late our neighbors have been talking so much about Root Juice and telling of the wonderful things it is doing that she decided to try it. She has been using it but a short while, but is almost entirely free from pain and is gaining in strength very rapidly. I don't believe she would have lived three months if it hadn't been for Root Juice." Those who have not visited Graham & Company's drug store during the past three weeks can have no idea of the number of people that have expressed themselves as wonderfully benefited after taking the Juice a short while. Many have called to report a complete cure, and many others have said: "I am fast recovering health under the Juice treatment. The great remedy is so soothing, healing and strengthening to the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, that it seems to cause every one that takes it to feel better in a very few days. We are told that the demonstration will close next Saturday night and until then the Juice is sold for $1 a bottle or three for $2.50."

FARMERS SCARED.

Wright Aeroplane Coming Cross Country Alarms the Natives.

Washington, July 29.—The farmers, white and negro, along the route over which the Wright aeroplane will fly on the straightaway test to meet the government's requirements view the whole affair with mingled emotions; many of them are chiefly afraid that Wright will drop in through their humble roofs, or what they feel would be more serious, work havoc in fields and gardens.

A persistent wind and a sudden discovered stoppage in the gasoline feed pipe of his motor prevented Orville Wright from making last evening his final cross-country, two-man test of the aeroplane.

The failure of the trial disappointed an immense crowd, including President Taft and practically all of the most prominent government officials. The Wrights have been given three days' additional time for the test, the original time limit having expired.

GIANT IMMIGRANT LANDS

Battery Employees Startled When Seven-Footer Arrives.

New York, July 29.—When George Dohling stepped off the immigrant boat at the battery there was a gasp of astonishment from a group of immigration employees. George stands seven feet, one and one-quarter inches high and weighs 275 pounds.

At the Eastern hotel the giant looked in through a transom and paralyzed the bartender by ordering three quarts of beer.

FLAMES THREATEN TOWN.

Bucket Brigades Work Heroically in Fighting Blaze.

Johnstown, Pa., July 29.—Fire which broke out in Ashville in the north of Cambria county this morning threatened the business portion of the town. The flames broke out in Harro's clothing store, which was destroyed together with the Ashville hotel. There is no fire company in the town and bucket brigades are working heroically, but with little effect.

Cut to Pieces By Train.

Wilmington, Del., July 29.—George Reed, aged twenty-five, of Washington, N. C., was cut to pieces by a freight train on the Pennsylvania railroad.
